

Dear Parents,

We had a short week this week. I hope everyone will celebrate Veteran's Day during this nice long weekend. I did not assign any homework for the weekend. This means there is much time for reading for Book It :o)

Believe it or not, we are heading into Thanksgiving time. We are already planning our next celebration for November 22nd. We will have the 23rd through the 27th off for Thanksgiving break. Attached is a letter from Kelly Carroccio with a contribution list. Not everyone is on the list because Kelly decided the contributions could be split between Thanksgiving and Christmas. I thought this was a good idea, and I hope you do as well. Please let Kelly or me know if you cannot bring in the assigned contribution so arrangements will be made Thank you.

Our spaghetti dinner night is on November 18th. I would like to remind you again that those tickets are coming home to you in the plastic pocket in planners. If you have not ordered as of yet, please get your order into me. It does cost one dollar more at the door. All classes are planning a special interactive display outside of their rooms for that night. Please make sure that you stop by all the classrooms and check them out.

As far as our studies this upcoming week, third grade will be making their own geometric shapes and learning about angles and the like. Second grade continues the unit on large numbers and place values (ones, tens, hundreds, and thousands). For English both grades, at different levels of detail and expectation, will be learning how to write a Friendly letter. They will also be typing these letters as well. I am excited that learning how to use the computer for this will be included with this unit. Our spelling test is on Friday, and you already have the words from last week. I am planning some small quizzes and some math drills at some point next week. The children will know when and what information to study. Check planners for this information.

Parents, thank you for all your prayers and support. I am so very blessed. Have a wonderful weekend.

Mrs. Salmonsens
